PERSONAL PROFILE

A statistician by training, I am an ambitious person having started formal employment prior to my first degree and further gone on to balance both school and other part time opportunities. In my current work, I have successfully secured and raised resources from both local and international donors, built strategic partnerships as well as managed member organisations. Working with a small team for a non-profit organization enabled me gain experience in advocacy for policy change, strategy writing and also furthered my abilities to self-supervise and multitask. Beyond work, my volunteer experience in Rotary has enabled me develop leadership acumen and furthered my value for accountability and people centeredness. Additionally, I have excellent communication skills and have moderated panels, written journal abstracts as well as spoken at different conferences.
